

KC Das Commerce College tense

By a Staff Reporter

GUWAHATI, July 28: Utter chaos and tension prevailed at the KC Das Commerce College at Chatribari area in the city after the bitter incident on July 26 when a college student, along with his accomplices armed with daggers and revolvers, had seriously injured a member of the students' union and another following an altercation. Even though a case had been registered in the Bharalumukh police station the same day, the police failed to trace the main culprit, identified as Krishna Tiwari, a student of the same college yet. It is alleged that the police are trying to cover up the matter and protect the culprits for reasons best known to them. Both the injured have been admitted to the Chatribari Christian Hospital in a critical condition. Expressing serious concern that such incidents have become a common phenomenon in the educational institutions, the college students' union has demanded immediate arrest of the culprits.

The Sentinel

29th July '99